MEET JOHN ISAAC DANIEL

John Isaac was enslaved on a plantation owned by Thomas Daniel (1762-1854) Alderman, Mayor and Merchant Venturer of Bristol. There are numerous monuments to Thomas Daniel and his family in Bristol Cathedral including the West Rose stained glass window. Under the Abolition of Slavery Act passed by the British Government in 1833, Thomas and his brother John received over £130,000 (millions in today's money) in compensation awards for at least 4,424 enslaved people.

The living descendants of John Isaac are campaigning for a monument to commemorate these lives and all the lives of the enslaved people quantified in the British registers held in the National Archives.

These 750,000 people were the sole survivors of this brutal trade. The lack of a National monument to the victims and survivors is a human stain on modern Britain.

We share in a common view that slavery was a crime against humanity and we are working in partnership with Gloria Daniel and the descendants of John Isaac to acknowledge the lives of these men, women and children, the brutality they experienced and the legacy of racism we are left with today.

MEET THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN ISAAC DANIEL

We, the living and recent descendants of John Isaac, who was enslaved on a plantation in Barbados owned by Thomas and John Daniel have asked Bristol Cathedral to allow us to erect a monument to honour John Isaac alongside the at least 4,624 enslaved African Caribbean people owned by these men. Between 1804 and 1836 Thomas Daniel and his brother John were awarded £130,000 (millions in today's money) in compensation for the loss of "their property" under the parliamentary Abolition of Slavery Act of 1833.

Thomas Daniel & Sons enriched themselves and their descendants through the immoral trade. Using this wealth, prestige and influence, their children were able to immortalise them in Bristol Cathedral by raising memorials and the significant West Rose window to their memory.

It is right and fitting that the direct descendants of the enslaved, advocate for the unheard voices of our ancestors and the 760,000 sole survivors of this brutal and as yet unatoned crime against humanity.

TOPPLING THE PAST

Dangling from a JCB, the statue of a slave-owning merchant is removed after 200 years by officials – as a cultural revolution explodes across Britain

THE future of scores of public monuments was in doubt last night after the toppling of another statue linked to slavery. The memorial – to the 18th century slave trader Robert Milligan – was removed just days after the Colston statue was thrown into Bristol harbour. Councils around the country announced yesterday they would review public monuments to ensure they were 'appropriate'. The 1813 statue to Milligan, who had more than 900 slaves on his Jamaican plantations, stood outside the Museum of London Docklands. But amid protests against monuments connected to slavery and colonialism, workmen moved in last night to remove it. Watched by a jubilant crowd, a JCB digger lifted it from its base before it was stowed in a lorry and driven off. London Mayor Sadiq Khan, who had earlier announced a sweeping review of statues, monuments and even street names, tweeted: Turn to Page 4

School Event: Eid Mela Fun Week

October 2013

We celebrated Eid-ul-Adha at Arden with the support of the community and local businesses. The Eid Mela included stalls, mendhi, cake making, bouncy castle and much more!

We had a visit from Geoffery the Giraffe from Toys R Us, who provided lots of fun for our younger children. Toys R Us kindly donated vouchers.

The event raised much needed money to help the school's community building 'The Arch', which is at the hub of the local community and provides classes for children and parents. The Eid Mela raised £2,013.

Thank you to all staff, parents and children who helped during the week extravaganza. We would also like to thank all the local businesses in the community who donated prizes, so please support these companies, they are: Toys R Us, Morrisons, Insaaf, AJZ Smart Fashion, Anchal, Armaan, Fashion 2000, Only Hijab, Zaib, Bin Harad, Qurtaba, Azad Supermarket, A1 and House of Guidance.

A record number of antisemitic incidents were recorded in the UK in 2019 for the fourth year in a row, according to figures compiled by the Community Security Trust (CST).

The CST, which monitors antisemitism and provides protection for the Jewish community, recorded 1,805 incidents last year, the highest number ever logged in a calendar year and a 7% increase on 2018.

The vast majority of incidents - 80% - involved abusive behaviour, such as verbal abuse, graffiti, or abuse via social media.

The increase was described as appalling and sickening by Priti Patel, the home secretary, who said she was "pushing for greater collaboration ... to

Scotland still doesn't know quite what to make of the Irish in its midst

▲ Celtic manager Neil Lennon, the subject of assaults and death threats. Photograph: Drew Farrell

More than a century and a half after they first began to arrive here in numbers, Scotland still doesn't know quite what to make of the Irish in its midst. For many decades, the narrative favoured by the four main pillars of Scottish society - media, church, legislature and judiciary - was one that portrayed them as ignorant, dirty, feckless and not fit for meaningful work. They had to be watched at all times. For, if hard-working, honest and upstanding Britons turned their backs for just one second they would find themselves with a knife between the ribs and a revolution on their hands.

The threat of anti-Muslim bigotry in Britain has been growing, and some politicians from the governing Conservative Party have been encouraging it.

In a newspaper column in August, Boris Johnson, the former Conservative foreign secretary — who is chummy with Steve Bannon and fancies himself an upper-class English version of President Trump — compared Muslim women who wear face veils to “bank robbers” and “letter boxes.”

Last week, the "most Indian cabinet" in British history realised a long-standing dream of the Tory right: the introduction of a purposely cruel "points-based" immigration system. Finally, as many were quick to point out, we saw the limits of "representation politics" laid bare - the home secretary, Priti Patel, and the three other British Indians appointed to Johnson's cabinet will only embolden Tory racism. But there is

Black members in UNISON work to improve equality in the workplace and challenge racism and discrimination.

Black members have many of the same concerns as other members regarding access to employment, pay, promotion and training. However, racist discrimination can deepen the impact of problems faced in the workplace.

UNISON's Black members' group (known as a self-organised group) campaigns for equality in the workplace and the wider community.

Joining UNISON helps you play an active and important role in every aspect of achieving equality in your workplace.

Speak to your local representative if you would like support or advice.

MURDERERS

The Mail accuses these men of killing. If we are wrong, let them sue us

Gary Dobson

Neil Aspinall

James Aspinall

Luke Knight

David Norris

THE Daily Mail today takes the unprecedented step of naming five young men as murderers.

They may not have been convicted in a court of law, but police are sure that David Norris, Neil Aspinall, James Aspinall, Gary Dobson and Luke Knight are the white youths who killed black teenager Stephen Lawrence.

We are naming these because, despite a criminal case, a private prosecution and an inquest, there has still been no justice for Stephen, who was stabbed to death in a racist attack almost four years ago.

Now we demand to give our ally for that night in April 1993. One initially offered an alibi, but it did not stand up when police checked it out.

This week the five refused to answer any questions at the inquest on Stephen, citing their legal right of privacy but to say anything which might incriminate them.

The Lawrence case remains to date the most notorious and the most public of British police.

If these men are innocent they can have every opportunity to clear their names in a legal process against the Daily Mail. They should have to give evidence and a jury in possession of all the facts would surely be able to decide.

Yesterday the jury at Southwark Crown Court held little doubt of one thing. It took only 30 minutes to decide unanimously that the 14-year-old black student was unlawfully killed, the victim of a completely unprovoked racist attack by the white youths.

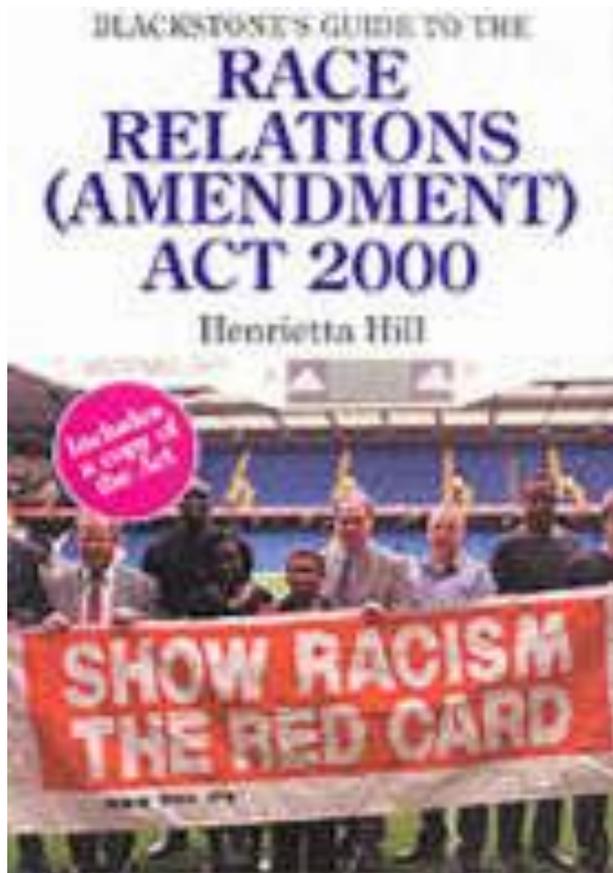

The relevant race, against Norris, 20, Neil Aspinall, 21, James Aspinall, 18, Dobson, 19, and Knight, 19, failed because of a lack of evidence. But if they thought they had got away with the killing they

What is multiculturalism?

- “... multiculturalism in the modern world involves on the one hand the acceptance of a single culture and a single set of individual rights governing the public domain and a variety of folk cultures in the private domestic and communal domains.”

(John Rex (2001) “The concept of a multicultural society“ in Guibernau, Montserrat and Rex, John (eds.): The Ethnicity reader, Nationalism, Multiculturalism and Migration, Cambridge, UK: Polity Press, p. 210

Kenan Malik:

“the idea of a plural or multicultural society is (...) a deeply ambiguous one... [the concept of multiculturalism] overestimates the homogeneity and autonomy of the various ethnic groups and underestimates the degree to which all groups are reciprocally implicated in the creation of cultural forms within a common framework (...).”
